Biography	Photo
Since November 2025 Sergio is Project Manager at MicroNanoSpain, the Spanish Competence Centre for micro- and nano-electronics, operating within the European Chips Joint Undertaking framework under AESEMI as a coordinator of the centre. In this role, he leads the design, launch, and operation of Spain's national technology infrastructure services, including access to R&D facilities, technical services, training, and innovation support for the semiconductor ecosystem. This requires a coordination of a multi-partner network of research centres, universities, and industry stakeholders. Prior to this role, Sergio spent over seven years at ASML, the world's leading lithography equipment manufacturer, where he held positions in project management, programme management, and business transformation, developing deep expertise in complex technical operations within the semiconductor industry. Sergio holds a degree in Industrial Engineering from the Universitat Politècnica de València and a Master's in Energy Engineering from Cracow University of Technology. With a career spanning semiconductors, high-tech manufacturing, and European innovation programmes, he brings a strong operational and strategic perspective to the advancement of micro- and nano-technology across Spain and Europe.
